Display racks & stands, wood grain key/CPU box

Involvement in wood material powder processing for 14 years, Jau Huang Industrial Co., Ltd. has in recent years developed into a wood-grain furniture maker, focusing on production of wood-grain display racks and stands, key/CPU box.

“Our wood grain transfer printing and high-temperature powder coating are high-end technology that can perfectly replicate natural wood and mineral grain on metal products,” a senior manager says. “Our products not only faithfully present wood grain effect, but also feature strength of iron, enabling the products to last longer than wooden counterparts.”

To enhance operating efficiency and lower manufacturing cost, Jau Huang has kept investing in upgrading facilities and cultivating talents.

“The company’s products significantly replace the use of wood or stone to achieve natural beauty without wasting wood and mineral resources, not to mention its recyclable nature,” the manager emphasizes. “So, the products are eco-friendly and very popular in today’s environmentally conscious market.”

“With years of efforts in R&D, we have successfully developed a variety of grain patterns, all conforming to requirements of multiple international standards after transfer printing,” he adds.

Jau Huang’s wood-grain display racks and stands are available in different colors, including silver white, burgundy red, light pink, light blue, etc. The company welcomes OEM and ODM orders as well as special requirements from customers.
