Springs and parts for textile machines

Established in 1979, Lyang Jeng Industry Co., Ltd. is a time-tested Taiwanese manufacturer dedicated to producing springs and parts for textile machines.

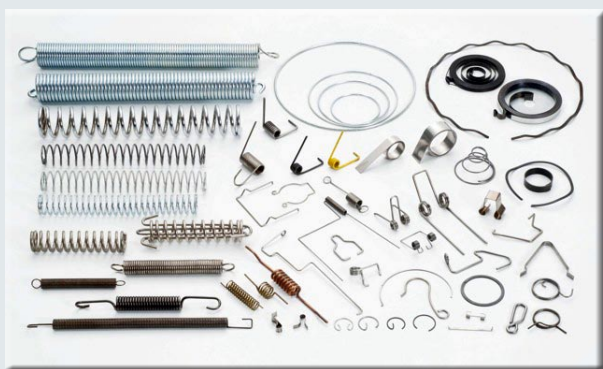

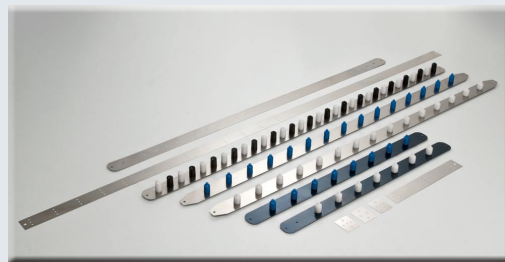

Lyang Jeng's product line is centered on springs, including torsion springs, constant force springs, extension springs, wave springs, fort-type torsion springs, shaped wire springs, steel springs, high-tension springs, compression springs, and coil springs, along with a variety of screw protection covers, piston rings, and conveyor belts, mostly for textile machines and other industrial purposes.

Following decades of development, the firm's products are recognized as top-tier by professional end-users from different sectors in Asia, North America, and Central and South America, thanks largely to a consistent dedication to quality.

Believing that quality is the key to customer satisfaction, Lyang Jeng has spent a considerable amount of resources setting up a full line of advanced in-house quality inspection equipment, such as a hardness testing machine, an American projector, tension and compression loading machine, fatigue testing machine, protective cover fatigue testing machine, and pulling and stretching compression fatigue testing machine. The firm hopes, in this way, to achieve the highest standards of dimensional precision and reliable quality.

Furthermore, the company insists on carrying out by-the-book quality control measures, from spot-checking throughout production to pre-delivery inspection. The floor layout and all operations at its factory meet ISO 9001 standards.

To satisfy customers' ever-changing demands, Lyang Jeng uses different metals and plastics in production, as required, and handles contract orders on an OEM (original equipment manufacturing) basis with assured punctual delivery and competitive prices.
